GUESSTIMATING

What is Faith?

The bible says, "Faith is the substance of things hoped for and the evidence of things not seen." After preparing a meal for breakfast, it was too hot, so I left it on the stove to cool for a while. There was no earthquake, the house did not burn down, and I did not die of a heart attack, nor did our world collide by the time I returned to have my meal. Is faith an estimated educated guess of probabilities or is there an established pattern of God that we can tap directly into to communicate effectively with Him? For without accurate prayer there is no true discernment to find the Holy Spirit of truth within His light and be guided out of darkness. "You ask but do not receive, because you ask wrongly to spend it on your passions. Adulterers! Do you not know that to be a lover of the world means enmity with God? Therefore, whoever wants to be a lover of the world makes himself an enemy of God."

When going to God in prayer, you must always remember that, "God resists the proud, but gives grace to the humble." Those who are proud have a sense of entitlement and power to manipulate God's Spirit while under the deception of a haughty spirit to achieve a result. "This is a Judas spirit that seduces one to serve God for what they can get out of Him to please their own flesh. Those who are humble before God, acknowledge powerlessness and are able to receive God's mercy by grace with a true repentant heart.

Those who seek to draw closer to God for His love exit out of darkness and come to know the Lord more deeply in His kingdom of light. With each embrace of going from glory light to glory light, we grow as more comes into focus, for we exit out of Satan's confusion from beneath this fallen angel's cloak by the doorway of Jesus Christ's piercing royal blood stained cross and Holy sacrifice.

I have faith in the living blood of Christ, because He has an empty grave of resurrection, leading all to follow Him into an eternal life. I am in this world and no longer of it by the Holy Spirit as I taste that my breaths have something more than beyond guesstimating my life. I have embraced God in oneness. I now know being born of the Spirit through the cycle of water to reconnect with Him spiritually. There has been a great escape of leaving other spirits behind through my growing into eternal life.

I have discovered that being absent from the body is to be present with the Lord by abiding in His vine. For His Kingdom has the sound of the voice of peace over the impetuosity of my compulsions. I finally recognize the motion of evil as only a camouflage of stillness that can drive one out of themselves when not being comfortably quiet inside to know the God of the living among the dead.

There is a rest without guesswork involved by those who hear God's voice as greater than any others of this world. For when they pounded my mind with haunting thoughts to get a rise out of my flesh, I fled to my Lord's loving embrace, which freed me from any disruptive thoughts of harm by faith.

Love

The other day, my daughter was busy and didn't answer my phone call. Because I know that my daughter loves me, I knew that eventually she'd return my call. It took time for me to learn that God looks at us in the same way.

There are those who prefer darkness rather than the truth that comes from the love of light. We try to spend most of our time with the ones we love while growing and these bonds create a plan for tribal families. I now recognize that having faith in doing what we believe while having similar interests with the one who made us is how we spend our time with the God we love. It's a full circle.

All feel comfortable with what they are familiar with, whether it be good or bad, but if what we are perceiving as the light of love is really darkness, then how great is that darkness. Can we really come to know anything real about ourselves if what we practice is in a dark kingdom? How can we come to know?

I had to learn for myself that when practicing what I do not understand, I didn't exist till some distant friends prayed me into existence, I'm sure. Darkness quickly becomes an unfriendly pattern when you encounter the aroma of a life that offers more, as a stronger love never fails to reveal the greater truth.

If you reject the one you love by committing adultery, whether emotionally or physically, God is always added to this picture by cheating on Him with idolatry. For as, "A threefold cord cannot easily be broken," when entering into a marriage contract between the spouse and God as if hearts are seduced away from love, we commit idolatry with Him as well as adultery by worshiping something less than Him. "We are to do everything as unto the Lord." If we're looking at God Almighty in the perfection of His son, we are loving God with all of our hearts, minds, souls, and strength because the Holy Spirit is indwelling us when making decisions.

In this way, we remain in union in full contract with God. However, it must not be misunderstood that this is a work of God. For in growing in our relationship with Him, He reveals deeper things to us by drawing closer to His love, as it is in this way that we have our hearts warmed, for more things to come into focus by His fervent light. Thank God for confession as this helps our growth with Him through an examination of conscious.

Jesus Christ, honoring God as man, is a perfect example of how to love God perfectly. Yet, Him being the mirror of God's image on earth, shows us the way as truth to surrender to God's will. It is through loving Him over life, which transforms us into the likeness of His image in eternal life by agreeing with His divine covenant. "If you lose your life for My name's sake, you will find it."

There is the vision of the flesh, causing us to seek pleasures from the world and a Holy vision that leads us to obtain eternal life from God's Spirit now. Learning how to discern between these two visions are the differences of life and death. If we are not "Rooted and grounded in the love of God," where do our thoughts draw from?

Thoughts

Where do our thoughts come from in which we make our choices? When guesstimating where choices are from, our thoughts are without the light of God to see the root from which we draw. "We are to take every thought captive under the subjection of Jesus Christ." I believe that thoughts have spiritual roots, which either draw from Satan's kingdom or God's, yielding to a power of creation towards life or death.

By following God's voice to examine our thoughts in the above scripture, we are called to understand what the character of Jesus looks like. Are we bearing the fruits of the Holy Spirit? This question should make us effective gardeners within our mind. If a thought tries to grow or has been growing in our minds that does not look like Jesus, it must be pulled out. When thoughts of darkness dim our minds, there is less room to bring God's clarity within our souls. So, if we have a thought in mind that veers us towards missing a deeper relationship with Him, it is from darkness rather than light.

The book of James states: "No one experiencing temptation should say that they are being tempted by God; for God is not subject by temptation to do evil, and He Himself tempts no one." Therefore someone without light to identify what lives in the dark guesstimates their choices without God.

James goes on to say, "Rather, each person is tempted when he is lured and enticed by his own desire," from his impulsive thoughts that lacked understanding. "Then desire conceives and brings forth sin, and when sin reaches maturity it brings forth death," where there is more room for spirits to hide in the dark, come, and devour to pull us apart. When the mind is made dim here, our lives become unmanageable to see what we choose to make choices in life.

We have been born in sin and where we are missing God's presence, darkness has our minds in the absence of Him. Our thoughts originally had only the Holy Spirit as light, but now we belong to Satan, until God through His Son, makes all things right. "If any man says that he is without sin then the love of the Father is not in Him."

Now with eyes on Christ, our requests are made for Him to change us because He is higher than a friend. For if we try to honor God in our strength, we take His place as God, and do not allow Him to enter in to take captive our thoughts by His power in place of our own.

Darkness will continue to hang as a cloud in our minds till God's Holy Spirit blows them out, and every evil spirit that lives within it shall yield till it falls away so that all may "Walk in the light as He is in the light that darkness no longer overtakes us," as we have gone through the door of the cross and have experienced death to come alive in Christ.

My vision had taken me through the darkness of fast and confused thoughts into a world of solitude from out of the storm. I may now start my growth from out of the still and fertile soul-soil by leaving the fleshly dark.

Feather floating in the air will you ever land to touch with pain or is pain thy very name? When all was in the motion of darkness, the spirits that were riding on the winds had blinded my mind and would not allow me to experience what I was feeling inside to heal in solace. At this time, with razor fine teeth, they fed off my pain which generated an energy for a feeding frenzy for these minions between the joint and marrow of my bones. This is what pure evil does within our flesh to tap into our souls.

The whole world appears to be stable while in motion and here we all are. You cannot plant a seed in a hurricane or identify emotions while being swept by spirits upon the wind. For me, the feather now feels to heal my emotional pains in the truth of God's kingdom that sees with light. I had originally been planted to experience them in my mothers womb, but then came the darkness of sin, and I went missing within.

I can feel while embraced in my thoughts joining to my emotions by God's healing balm from beyond above as He is within me in the gentleness of His love. Like a bee to a flower which gathers in nature, my pollen of pain is gone. I now generate a living seed to carry nectar for honey to be made as naturally sweet in God. "God works all things for good for those who love Him," as He is the designer who refashions all to carry on and be brand new within the Holy Spirit that gives us the mind of Christ.

Given Spiritual Facts

We are all here in what appears to be a physical world with bodies of our own, but to what purpose?

“All of creation testifies of God?” Could He have left us, the crown of God’s creation, a hidden message that surrounds us, with an answer as a puzzle in pieces to put together to figure out why?

I have noticed that everything happens in cycles and in circles as a part of the puzzle. There’s a water, land, and spiritual cycle in addition to plant and animal ones that start out as seeds among changing seasons. On a micro and macro cosmic scale, everything orbits around everything in any kind of molecular structure in the balance of the way things are.

Looking further into it, everything started out from a living bloodline in a cycle of progression in a bond of loving life. Then the brilliant light of intellect became broken by the evil that hides in darkness within only a pretense as they all hide well in the dark.

There are installments that can measure and calibrate these findings in nature. Our natural aging within time till death becomes involved is one such measurement in time. I have had the privilege of studying these cycles and know that our spiritual natures became broken from cycling with God, which resulted in a bloodline of death. Yet once the cycles are rejoined through the waters of baptism, orchestrated by God, all can be restored through the recalibration of living blood at every mass that contains a consecrated Holy Host. Although, I believe that there are different stages of grace in each level of our growing relationship with God for those who intently desire Him. “Blessed are those who are pure in heart for they shall see God.”

According to scripture, every word is a sword in the spiritual world from our tongue. "The issues of life and death are in the tongue," that we convey. Our actions and words yield power for creation towards life or death, so we must be careful about the two edged swords behind our attitudes as there is a difference between destructive and constructive criticisms. For, we feed from the same trough. One manner of spirit divides by the letter of their relationship with the law of truth, "The letter kills." While with the Holy Spirit, "Love edifies." By building with expressive body language and tone of tongue, the differences are made known.

Listen to God's voice carefully while He tries to get your attention when things are going wrong in life and He shall direct your path to make things right. For a purposeful light is filled with the facts of a love that understands, there's no room for abuse in life. There's no more gray, it's plain to say as everything's now black and white. We don't always have an answer, but we grow to one day be right. For by turning over spiritual stones with each lesson learned, we fly out of darkness off the edge of a coin to see only Jesus and no longer presume as now in my heart there's plenty of room.

I have moved past disagreements to let out His Spirit. No more turmoil in my soul where finding God's path beyond my own, His point of view has made me whole. Faith does not pull us through to conquer, but change. For prayer slows us down in an adverse wind that creates friction when considering Him. Beyond heat and fire, there is God's light, which allows me to see that much more of my life.

You cannot have discernment without proper vision, for when all is dark in the distortion of feelings, you'll trip and fall every time. However, once thoughts and emotions are cohesive, our detachment from them disappears for the balance of maximum perceptiveness.

Then we can properly examine our situations with clarity and not spiritual confusion. It is important to know what Jesus does and doesn't look like according to the character of the fruits of the Holy Spirit, or we can be drawn away.

"Be still and know that I am God." It is evident that we need to know each moment for perspective. For just as, "A kingdom divided against itself cannot stand," what is still cannot connect with the compulsion of motion. Peace differs from commotion in that, "If you sow to the wind you will reap a whirlwind," but if, "Seated in heavenly places with Christ Jesus," you'll find, "Godliness with contentment is great gain," For, "You will reap what you sow." Scattered knowledge has no clarity whereas Godly wisdom has light.

There is no guesstimating with the mind of Christ as you can see with wisdom in His kingdom and know how to apply knowledge with light. There is a meal that goes forth when sharing life, for the flavor is sweet as it feeds the soul while others feed along with you. As just as, "A laborer is worthy of His hire," it is also known, "Do not muzzle the ox in the field while He is working."

The issues of life and death are in the tongue, for when we speak in the Holy Spirit, it is like a well-spring of information that waters like a fountain to satisfy a soul.

Cause & Effect

For every action there is an equal and opposite reaction.

In physics, when you exert force against an object or mass, it sets it in motion because it overcomes its being still from its set position, called inertia.

The fact that you need to apply a maximum force or (thrust energy) to dislodge a mass out of stability to make it unstable by placing it in motion, explains the break in reality between God and what happened to the original man.

The spiritual world is different from the physical world and yet together at the same time as this keeps all things in balance. In the foundation of God's world, every spiritual act affects the physical world. This was the case when Adam made his spiritually-deciding thought to physically dislodge himself through his doorway of disobedience which landed us all in the death sentence of this world. For once set in motion by his disobedient act, his subjective self was objectively set in motion due to his actions. Now with less force, we're all kept in motion and this needs to be rectified.

Jesus Christ, who is also known as the second Adam, reversed this dislodgement by His righteous act of honoring God to go against the motion of disobedience. "Heaven and earth shall pass away, but my word shall never pass away." He conversely brought all motion to a standstill by slowing down through the power of His living bloodline, which created a resurrection of passing through friction, heat, and fire until becoming light to pierce the motion of darkness as the door back into the light. "God is the same yesterday, today, and forevermore."

Now, just as dark matter is the energy force used to keep everything in motion through death, light energy became the door to usher mankind back into an eternity of life by each righteous act at a time to become the first fruit of resurrection. Jesus Christ, by the power of His regenerative blood, set all things right. Each righteous act contributed to the sum total of Thee righteous act that was accomplished on the cross by livingly pure righteous New Covenant blood. The flesh and blood of Jesus Christ is being used to go against what is being used for us to pick up speed (velocity) to keep the object of our subjective souls in motion. This suggests to me that the commotion found in anxiety and in the stillness of calm are two different worlds.

In either case, energy is either transferred or stored. Yet, when stored in stillness, we conserve our energy through the power of Jesus holding the door open as Thee door of the resurrection. We remain with God while fed the substance of Himself at every consecrated Holy Mass where we progressively are being slowed down to be recalibrated at every partaking of the Holy Eucharist. Yet whilst in motion, though we expend our energy against ourselves, God's mercy endures forever to cover us while in time. For as long as it shall last, the door remains open.

Through the power of suggestion inside our thoughts, we believe we have life, but are led to feed minions for their cost without the Holy Mass or desire of intention to be washed by His blood from the inside out or there would be no redemption. "To what depths have you fallen from the heavens, O morning star, son of the dawn!" James 1:14,15 "Each person is tempted when he is enticed and lured by his own desire. Then desire conceives to bring forth sin, and when sin reaches maturity it gives birth to death."

Here in the absence of God's presence from within, we cave inside ourselves and allow minions to enter in, for we are their food source with an expanse of expending our thought energy to feed them while blindly trying to solve a physical problem. This happens when not recognizing that God is calling upon us to call upon Him to meet our needs as “God is an ever present help in time of need.”

He breaks the demonic powers that feed our thoughts to be in our minds to expend our energy by acting out physically. God uses His light to make a way for us to call upon Him. He reveals to us what to ask of Him when we are stressed.

Guesstimating causes us to divide our minds into a confusingly dry and stale life of boredom, which happens when practicing what we don't understand, and this allows an off balanced motion to keep settling in. While a life of serving God keeps it fresh and alive, for within a life of singularity, a single mind has a reverse resistance to motion. Therefore no energy is being spent. This allows for a calm foundation of peace, outside of motion, where everything can be built on a lasting eternal last that will never fail as it won't come tumbling down. “For everything that can be shaken will be shaken so that which shall remain will remain.” I understand that the realm of time lacks stability as its foundation is not sound. So, by looking on with sight in what's understood, this is how I discern what kingdom I am in that of time or eternity.

I have observed that the faster one's mind races within their thoughts, the more anxious they get. Could the scripture, “The dead in Christ shall rise again,” also mean that when you still the mind and come out of motion to enter peace, a change in your perspective takes place where you leave time and enter eternity? I have learned that God slows us down to teach us more when answering the call to climb His Mountain. I am not sure where I am on it, but from the height He has taken me, I am sharing what He has revealed from the view that He has shown me.

Prayer is a reverse thrust of energy that goes against motion and slows us down out of dark commotion to go into an orbit around God till landing in the heart of His love. For without the confusion of darkness, as we gain perspective from each plateau, there is the Holy Spirit's guiding Light that allows us to connect with God's embrace. Beyond any deception that has harmed, we're healed in the sanctuary of His arms as "God's love restrains us," and never fails.

During this process, we pray through friction, heat, and burning flames of fire until there is only light. Going against unseen spiritual forces that ride on the winds, we battle against them. These minions try to deceive us into turning back by making prayer progressively uncomfortable through pumping adverse thoughts within our minds that are contrary to the voice of God. Although once through them and into the light, the minions are pushed back by the true light of stillness found in Jesus Christ.

It is a fight to go against the unnatural properties of this world which seem natural to us. Just as a weed might seem natural to a flower until it realizes that its roots are being strangled as its colors start to fade to its demise. In this world, energy is broken down, and everything dies. Did you ever ask yourself, "Why?"

Dying is not natural, for we were originally created to live a forever that is alive. A heavenly place is where we once were, where the full light of love and intellectual reasoning was complete. For if you were God, would you just not exist in a place that you were content in?

"Godliness with contentment is great gain," and "Be still and know that I am God," are two scriptures that come to mind. This gives God cause not to move from where he stands and, in effect, for us to pay attention to His plan that we may join Him in His land. John 3:16 says, "For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son, that none should perish but all have everlasting life with Him." Believe and receive His living bloodline in fullness of life, forever.

When life tastes sweeter with God than anything else, there's no more desire to over indulge in what can never satisfy.

Choices

We have a choice to: “Do everything as unto the Lord,” or abort God out of our lives by committing idolatry. The discerning voice should always be: “Is this something I need to enhance my relationship with the Lord or to please my flesh?”

In this same light, men and women always have a choice to worship their creature selves or the Lord, our Creator. Murdering a baby to justify their actions of sin puts a piece of God to death with every abortion. King David aborted Uriah's life by sending him to the front lines of a battle and leaving him there alone after committing adulterous idolatry with Bathsheba, his wife, and getting her pregnant. This is an example of a dark choice when trying to manipulate circumstances to suit our own purpose.

God's mercy endures forever. In spite of David's arrogant pride and hardened heart, Nathan the prophet was sent to him to settle with God and make all things right due to his multiple sins, including the sin of murder. Now just as David was seduced into making things convenient for him, do we not do the same when we murder the innocent through abortion? In this same light, God sent His Son, Jesus Christ, out of love according to His plan to be reconciled and fellowship with Him in eternal life. For, “To know God is to know eternal Life.”

Clarity becomes easier when searching for God with all our heart as the warmth of His fervent love opens our path to the Spirit of His light. This also helps God to refashion us while our element of choices melt within us, for the closer we get to His brilliance by love, the more we are shaped by the power of His might. Choosing to serve Him in love is no longer a chore. The wall of darkness has been removed and the whip of the task master gone. It is a glorious freedom that I adore as I've trusted to love the truth of light that emanates from God's throne.

I no longer serve myself with an attitude of death beneath my breath which hides in the dark. My burden of work was not light in my life till God took my load, changing me within to want only His affection. Keeping my eyes on the Lord and humbly asking Him to protect me from spiritual pride, "Our righteousness is as filthy rags," always yields for a better choice. For when I tried to emulate the man, Christ Jesus, who is perfect man walking in the Holy Spirit as the mirror of the truth of God on earth, I would only fail miserably each time. I had discovered God on earth as a friend, but not remembering Him as Divine Christ, all hell would break loose in my life by not calling on Him to change it as He is The Divine.

Every time I tried being like Christ, I became frustrated inside while trying to walk in my strength in His steps while trying to be used by God. These were dangerous waters, but God mercifully kept me alive. I would fast, pray, and seem to win souls everyday till I noticed recurring sin within an inner strife, which would hinder me from feeling complete while knowing eternal life.

I had to recognize this snare of the fowler, the devil himself, and it almost cost me my mental health. I finally came across the verse of resting in the Lord beyond a Sabbath one and learned I had been guesstimating a walk in the Lord, which is one of Satan's ploys. Then when I recognized this sin, I was able to go to God and rely on Him. For by believing that I could walk as my Lord, it was a trying error as I am sure that He was saying go right ahead. It was a valuable lesson to learn that I'm not God. This is when I became ready to trust and call solely on Him.

Now I know it is not about trying, but relying where changes occur. Being grafted on as a Branch to His vine, allowed me to be crafted on His potter's wheel and rest my head in a humble place. "I am the vine and you are the branches, unless you abide in me, you can do nothing."

It is a choice to make a decision, but when you go with God, you enter into His Kingdom. This is made evident by, "Perfect love casts away all fear." For when going with Him, "The peace of God which surpasses all understanding guards your hearts and minds." A joy is then produced that defeats death in every situation. Its bitter taste removed, which had beaten one down in abuse because you're enjoying God's presence in eternal life while Knowing Him who heals all wounds.

If not studying a problem to solve it with the truth of God's wisdom, a reassurance of faith through trust cannot take place. God loves you to see that He is the reason to pray or the problem will remain. So, the only way that you can avoid becoming a part of the problem is that a concrete foundation without corruption must be built upon. This establishes a boundary to grow to a height within God's kingdom to have a far enough vision according to His principles of law to discern what is accurate and true. For God is not a liar and remains true to His character. Do right by calling upon Him and He'll do right by you.

Jesus said, "I am the way, the truth, and the life. No man comes to the Father but by me." So if I choose to believe in Him, everything will hold true for me to eventually grow in my relationship with Him to solve any problem, too. For I will grow in the humility of love to the summit of the mountain of God, meet Him face to face to ask Him to reveal anything that I have need of out of love and await for His response. This is the heritage that God chose for us and I have decided to respond. "For, to much has been given, much is required," and I have chosen to not guess, but believe and know Him more. I see it now as another plateau of rest to enjoy that much more. His view is a respite on my journey as I camp out with Him. He moves and now I follow Him as I've gotten to know His love.

Spiritual Boundaries

How does light affect darkness? We are born into this world with the centers of our beings imprisoned in darkness, trapped in a world of lies and hate where all is dark without the light of love. I lived in only a section of my soul until all of my limitations were overcome to make me whole by stepping out of the breadth and into the moment of eternal life. "For to whom is the heights, the depths, the length, and the breadth of God revealed?"

Feeding on God's eternal words with an understanding of how they connect with His covenant led me to study the root history of the church. "We are to be rooted and grounded in the love of God," and this is where I learned to abide while drawing sap from the root-riches of His kingdom.

I grew to break the bonds of darkness. Growing progressively into God's brilliance by slowing down in the dark, I got a bearing of my sight. Then after noticing that other people were of a different Spirit, I was touched by God's great love and wanted more. These sparks of love gradually became my sight till from the midst of my discomfort, sparks of truth became light. God has been hugging me back each time in prayer. "We love because God first loved us."

I'm now built on Him with a greater love, line upon line that nothing else can be compared to. Seeing inside myself, now sparked by the divine, I ask for change that He would replace my frights of night with more of His light. I next noticed in the mirror, within the mirror of my eyes, that they had become shining bright.

There are stages in which we grow while passing through the discomforts of friction, heat, and burning flames of fire until there is Holy light. I believe this to happen in each progression of growth when coming out of the breadth to enter eternal life while passing through the length of time.

In stage one of establishing our spiritual boundaries, we are in a darkness in which our minds are dim till the warmth of love starts to ignite our souls to see with light within. For after being overrun by others, I caved inside while in the dark of an abyss within the depths of where demons ruled, residing in the trough of the wave of time. Then while passing through the seconds of its meandering length, I felt like a river run dry. In contrast, I also strived to reach its heights, but encountered an angel of darkness disguised as an angel of light. For success in this world leaves you in this world and not of the kingdom where one reaches God to truly connect with Him. "This people honor me with their mouths but their hearts are far from me." Boredom sets in as I realize that from this plateau, I have missed His hand to be lifted up again.

After studying further, I learned that after Jesus fasted for forty days and nights the devil tempted God as man to use heavenly powers to satisfy His flesh. This was to interfere with a later perfect sacrifice of Himself being tempted as a sinless, flawless man.

The devil next offered Him all the kingdoms of the world if he'd bow down and worship Him. Jesus replied a firm no in His answer. Then from the crest of the wave of the same pinnacle of success after the battle was won, he challenged Him with a twist of scripture, "If thou be the Son of God." It is written, if you throw yourself down from this mountain, an angel will appear and bear you up lest you dash your foot upon a stone. Then Jesus countered him with the word as well, "It is written, thou shall not put the Lord thy God to the test." The devil backed away after this encounter with Him and Jesus remained in the kingdom while He walked the earth.

The difference in the way these scriptures were spoken during this discussion is that one honored God in humility as Jesus knew that He had nothing to prove. For He spoke from a foundation of peace with stability while using the voice of life. The other voice was a challenger with a commotion to throw Jesus from His Kingdom of eternal peace by trying to bait Him into the motion of pride. One spoke the word and one was the word, which Jesus spoke as a part of Himself while being in this world and not of it.

John 17:20, 21: "I pray not only for them, but also for those who will believe in me through their word. So that they may all be one, as we are one." We are spiritually alive in eternal life now and later get our heavenly tents physically unless we choose to believe Satan's lies, which will make us ineffectually lukewarm. For grace is the doorway to holiness, it is not grease where you just slide by. "I would rather you be hot or cold, for the lukewarm I will spew out of my mouth," says God.

In the second stage of growth, we recognize that we were being overrun by abusive people without any love. For when one is not protected by God, a feeding frenzy takes place in lives that are thrashing to stay alive. This is where everything is confusing and we strive to stay alive while the love of God goes missing within, which is sin.

Growing in the third stage, we recognize that it's not about other people but the spirits that are living within them that are dulling their minds towards abuse. For their perception of love and truth joining together is still an off-balanced mess while trying to get out of the hole they are digging by themselves. Seeing things darkly in the lukewarmness of their faith, they need to be prayed for as love never fails to edify. So, "We are to be quick to listen, slow to speak, and not to enter into strife." For after feeding on God's word as milk and steak, maturity allows us to see when we're being baited by spiritual forces to lose God's peace through the strength of our own power.

If we keep resting in the Lord and develop all His Spiritual fruits, we'll reach a place where against these, there is no law as we have taken root. Galatians 5:18 "But if you are guided by the spirit, (love, joy, peace, patience, kindness, generosity, faithfulness, gentleness, self-control), you are no longer under the law." So beware of being compulsive and unnatural by not being true to who you are. For when you are content within, you will find yourself comfortable in your own skin. Sharing God's love comes naturally here when standing firm on Christ. He is the essential foundation of God's peace where others can enter into a relationship with the you in Jesus, then experience the inside joy of rest.

Remember, when it comes to boundaries, Satan is always rude as this fallen angel's minions pound your mind with thoughts to gain access to divide your soul. For once your soul is breached, the single-minded focus of the Holy Spirit will be broken from within. You'll recognize an attack once your toe has been stepped on as you'll become restless within.

"Seek peace and pursue it." Call out to God and refocus on Him or a foothold will gain entrance to entice you into a stronghold of sin where if you lose humility, it will be hard to get back to Him. This is also made evident by losing your peace when taking matters into your own hands. For when the flesh rises up, things get chaotic, and speaking in anger can lead you to rage. Is anything really worth losing your eternal peace over? For while this happens, you enter into Satan's domain for minions to feed off your energy. You'll know you're in the wrong kingdom when you hear yourself complain.

Backbiting is a sign that you're praying to what lies in darkness rather than the kingdom found in eternal life. Therefore, after you've gotten your point across, if you continue standing your ground peacefully in God's Kingdom of rest, you have not entered Satan's domain. Mark my words, a battle is lost every time that you feel depleted inside as a minion has had a meal. This is how you can tell that a spiritual boundary has been broken from a guesstimate.

Trust

What holds your vision? Is it real in the way that you want to achieve a result?

Before riding a horse, it's a good idea to have its owner introduce it to you, then feed and make friends with it first. For if you try to immediately exert force over it in pride, within a no love kind of spirit, chances are that you will get thrown from the saddle of life. However, while you're learning guidance from the Holy Spirit of truth, grace allows you to get back in the saddle again till you learn to be carried by Jesus in eternal life. I live one day at a time while learning to recognize my source of life.

Knowing the one who owns your life is essential. For although a wild horse may seem like a challenge at first, it will wear you down as you get older and you will find yourself ill-equipped to find its owner to teach you mastery later on.

In learning to know myself, I remained a mystery until I learned God's history, which left me in awe. For I had found the basic instructions before leaving earth, The Bible, to have a plan. Then after reading it and studying it for so many years, I asked the question, "Where did it come from?" Why, there was a history behind this book that caused me to take a second look. For some of my interpretations had been off. Without understanding its foundation, I had no real reference point from which to draw.

An experienced seaman knows have to navigate the ocean by using the stars. I had to learn to navigate through the Bible by learning it had a New Covenant reference point from which to draw. Now my course was guided from the history of the church, which explained The New Covenant as a solid cross reference for me to navigate by. I now have a plan to follow that replaces my guesstimating.

“Seek ye first the kingdom of God and His righteousness, then all these things will be added unto you.” You know in your heart of hearts if you’re being insincere with God or not. For if you guess that everything is alright with Him in unknown factors, it is really not.

Speaking from experience, when you do not really serve Him completely by trusting Him enough to lay down your life, “You reap what you sow.” You will not reap a full eternal spiritual life, or perhaps, as I mentioned earlier in the scriptures, “The lukewarm, I will spew out of my mouth.” So, if you’ve been traveling through life by navigating in the confusion of a dark and spiritual pride, now is the time to tame the horse by humbly giving it to God. 2nd Peter 3:11-16 “Since everything is supposed to be concluded in this way, what sort of persons ought you to be, conducting yourselves in holy devotion, waiting for and hastening the day of God; because of which the heavens will be dissolved in flames and the elements melted by fire. But according to His promise we await new heavens and a new earth in which righteousness dwells. Therefore beloved since you await these things, be eager to be found without spot or blemish before Him, at peace. And consider the patience of our Lord of salvation as our beloved brother Paul, according to the wisdom given to Him, also wrote to you, speaking of these things as he does in all his letters. Some things are hard to understand that the ignorant and unstable distort to their own destruction, just as they do the other scriptures.”

So, remain teachable and trust that God will send you the right instructors who bear the Holy Spirit's fruit from Him at the right time. They will be guided with roots of love and grounded in peace and joy. Remember, unstable people guesstimate and have no firm foundation of truth within themselves. These false teachers will only cause you to stumble in the end. For the foundation that they build on is as unstable as the sands of time. Yet, the plumb line of Christ has a foundation that remains ever steadfast and true for you to build out of time and into eternity, too. The one who teaches falsely, their ground shall not be at peace, for the unstable guesses within themselves. Do not build with them as a relationship with God shall bow and fall down as an unstable wall in the end. "For when the blind lead the blind the two fall into a ditch," which is a fallen earth in the valley of the shadow of death.

Time

“Man plans and God Laughs.” Everyone wants to do things according to their timetable. Yet most do not realize that all time spent in freedom belongs to God.

God’s timing is a time of rest, “Be still and know that I am God.” In His still presence, there’s an inner peace with Him as we are in His kingdom of light, which has a comprehension of what He reveals to us in our sight. A light is seen, not to run from when appearing off in the distance, but to grow towards. In all other avenues of life, when walking without having peace, there are disturbances from the kingdom of confusion, and it is hard to see throughout the darkness of this night.

Whether we are being distracted, deflected, or deceived away from being present with God, losing focus on the timing of His kingdom, we find ourselves sinking in the troubles of our world. Like Peter, who got distracted from looking at Jesus while walking on the waters of the Sea of Galilee. He started to sink when he looked at the waves of His surroundings, then fearing to drown in the murk of all around; Peter cried out, “Save me!”

Jesus was there in an instant. Soon after, they were found safely within the boat, a place of sanctuary from the storm. Stillness in the commotion of the wave of time in which this fallen world is caught within the breadth, passing through all of its seconds, Jesus is our anchor.

When questioning time, I slowed through its realm of darkness and burned through friction, heat, and fire till gaining entrance beyond the door and into the kingdom of light. This is where I met Jesus in His love, and by His divine mercy, I am cleansed daily through His Spirit within a commingling of His blood.

Will the wave of time come to an end? Born again, I had to go someplace. Born of the Spirit, I have entered eternal life. "To know God is to know eternal life." I exhort everyone to walk in holiness, for such is God's kingdom. We are what we eat, as in time there is a choice between good and evil, whereas in eternity there is only the best of good while naturally in the Christ. He is in us within the purity of His living resurrection bloodline of life. We will be in Him, and He will be in us as one. "Be ye holy as I am holy," For one day we shall know Him as He is when we see Him face to face within His time, and as He is the truth, there will be no more guesstimating.

One day, time will run out in this realm, "Heaven and earth shall pass away, but my words shall never pass away." Then there will be either a kingdom of love where "To the pure all things are pure," in eternal life, or an eternal damnation of only abusive company.

When we practice what we understand, we are in eternity, for we have grown into an existence of good or evil. At the end of our lives, "We reap what we sow." So, depending on how we decide to follow God's plan of salvation, we will be granted access to His circle of love or not. I chose to enter into eternity from time by the doorway of the blood of Jesus Christ, who is hanging on His Holy Cross to let in eternal light for as long as it will last on earth as true light cuts through time.

Eternity

The Bible says: "Seek peace and pursue it." Time is to motion as eternity is to rest. So, we must slow down beyond the commotion found in time to have peace for perspective in the light of eternal life. I've learned to put anything that has my sight on pause to see if it has the kind of love greater than the light of Christ. When something gets dismissed as second best compared to knowing the love of Christ, it grows stale before going pale compared to the glory of God's eternal life.

Regarding sin, another scripture says, "To have thought it is to have done it." If "Godliness with contentment is great gain," and "God is slow to act as a thousand years is to a day and a day as a thousand years with the Lord," is it possible that in His stillness, God does everything through His thoughts, going out from the centrality of none motion into motion as the root of a spiritual tree? Could this then create the motion in His circular cycle of love to light to life and then back to His regenerative resurrection blood, which flows as a pool into a fountain of balance to hold all in its place?

In case anyone is wondering, how is it possible that I am sharing this vision? God caught me by His mercy to show me around and experience being in His presence firsthand.

Will God ever die? The scriptures say that "God is a God of the living and not the dead." I see the elements of His essence as a perpetual state of being in suspended animation on a deeper level than I understand right now.

Rather than go into a speculative guesstimate that would deprive me of my peace where I would be exceeding my growth rate to saw off my branch from His vine, I will continue to be still. I will heed God's voice that says it is not safe for Him to disclose or for me to pursue this answer as the scripture says, "To what depths have you fallen from the heavens, O morning star, son of the dawn!" If God wants to reveal this answer to me, I can wait for His time as I enjoy His kingdom and respect His boundaries. "Love never fails" to reach from eternity into time.

Child Rearing

I had no direction in social skills in my life; I do not blame my parents, for they could only do the best that they knew. Yet, as “God works all things out for good for those who love Him,” I believe that my early prayers of concern for Him in Hebrew School opened a path toward me finding Him at the core of His being.

For every action, there is an equal and opposite reaction. I believe that God as Creator either wired me to be who I am to show Him compassion on how busy He must be or that my childlike faith in prayer was honored by Him. “Unless you have the faith of a little child, you will in no wise enter the kingdom of God.” Looking back, I can see how He sent an angel to guide me home to Him throughout my life through His Spirit. Fortunately, my parents had sent me to Hebrew School to learn about Him. By seeing how God interacts and treats others throughout the Bible, I feel secure in honoring Him.

There are patterns in the home that children pick up on through the osmosis of family dynamics. Once out of Hebrew School, I forgot about God and gravitated towards observations of how my family and friends lived on life’s terms in the world. A heritage of the atmosphere of family and peers is something I tried to copy, but my not being who God made me be left me dazed, confused, and in the dark. Feeling insecure, I learned that children took care of themselves, and that was good enough for me until I realized that the truth about who I was was missing inside.

Frozen without any love to know myself in an esteeming way, I was left clueless about who I was. Isaiah 42:3: “He will not break a bruised reed, nor will he snuff out a smoldering wick; faithfully he will establish justice.”

God had not forgotten me. I can see He guided me to pause, ponder, and search for His light in my darkness. I started to learn his voice, and now I hear it loud and clear: "Do not cheat on me!" If it does not look like God, He is not there.

I am aware that different behavior patterns are passed down through different generations. However, if behaviors veer from the truth of God, they bend and twist reality into distortions. You must practice what you fully understand, choose darkness over God's light, and put yourself out of existence with Him. Then, while He is not there, lying spirits that live in darkness will take control of your life. For in the absence of celebrating the truth of God loving you, all manner of dragons will manifest themselves.

I recall being bored and looking for something to do. Someone planted the thought in my mind to find a hobby. Later, when I discovered the thrill of a hobby that only lasted for a season after I learned the truth, I realized that it was only a deception that distracted me from God. If you don't know what a gun is or how to drive a car, chances are you're going to have an accident eventually and incur death or great harm. Guesstimating a life instead of knowing what it is all about is just as dangerous. If the world was a random place without being planned, could it have lasted this long?

By truth becoming my mother, replacing the confusion of lies, all finally became clear. My heart and mind gradually grew together so that my focus could be healed as a mature person in God's love. I am now aware that the Spirit or spirits truly parent us within the minds of all to draw us nearer or further away from God. "There is a way that seems right unto a man, but in the end, it only leads to death."

Guesstimating's End

One fully exists when one practices what one understands in Spirit and truth. In this world's time-based realm, there are many spirits, but in the whole of creation, only one unified Holy Spirit guides us to meet a very real Jesus Christ. God, meeting with our focus means that we are not guessing with a faith that is blind, "For when the blind lead the blind, the two fall into a ditch." A ditch to me is the valley of the shadow of death, which I believe is this world as everybody dies of death.

When people hate and abuse, love becomes a foreign land. When one stops hating, they know they have changed because they can taste the sweetness of God's love in its place.

In order not to guesstimate, you have to "Study to show yourself approved." If you were to buy a used car, would you not want to know all about it beforehand, or would you just guess that you could afford the gas, possible repairs, and auto insurance expenses? You would want to know the mileage or if it was ever in an accident. Look under the hood, check the hoses for wear, and check the maintenance reports, or possibly take it to a mechanic for inspection after a test drive.

Before I opened my online bookstore at calingtoncastle.com, I checked the traffic to my website, found the best theme for the layout, organized it, and figured out the cost of how long it could be maintained. I then figured out the advertising expenses and the risks of opening a business that would change it from a hobby to a profession. I also ensured that I was doing everything right by God, my main business partner, and the team of people He brought into my life to make things happen.

In this same light, "Salvation" should be studied until the only choice is to live it out. I came to this conclusion from people around me who thought it was up to them beyond trusting in God's words to try and fix or rule this world.

Guesstimating happens when we try to fit God's world into ours rather than join Him in eternal life, for we've become used to surviving in this world rather than trusting to thrive with God in His kingdom of eternal life. For it's not about our way of life, but living in the sanctuary of God on His celestial shores as "We are now in the world, but no longer of it." Spiritually, the aroma and breath of life in God's kingdom is better than what the world offers. So, being content with the spiritual heritage of His Kingdom rather than what this world has to offer, I choose God's words of prophecy overall as they have proven themselves true.

I am grateful for being delivered from a seductive world of darkness. I now choose to reject what sounded good to me to please my flesh and pride of life for the doorway of Christ's cross. I see that I need to be seasoned with the Spirit of the living God and not the spirits of this world anymore. "For if the salt should lose its flavor, it is good for nothing."

This world is evil because it has invisible bars of darkness that distract from the God of light. You cannot escape the prison of this world with lies but only the truth of God. Remember that there is a death sentence in this fallen world due to Adam's sin, where he cut himself off from the living God by listening to darkness and cheating on Him.

We are now spending time in this world, which is evident by the spiritual forces draining us. By preferring the dark, Adam replaced the light of God's life and was told, "You shall work by the sweat of your brow until the day you die," for he had married the deceptive voice of lies.

This sounds like doing a hard time and the labor of a prison sentence to me, as Adam was not sent here to do things right. I have been liberated from my ancestral sentence of death by God's plan for eternal life, where I now spend time in the light of Christ. The weight of this dark world has fallen off my shoulders compared to the glories of God's promise as His heavenly balance of love and truth has been proven true. There is no more slothfulness in my walking with God as I now hear His voice, which tells me when to move and that I'll not take root in this world to please my flesh any longer.

If you know that God is directing your life path, it will be vibrant and exciting while you are in harmony with Him. The question of, "What is God going to have for me next?" while enjoying His presence should come to mind. He now has hold of my vision. I can't wait for his reveal as I remain teachable in His brilliance. In this way, life becomes like a candy store as revelations from God about who He is, rich, sweet, and filled with the substance of light without decay, allow for a more enhanced and purposeful life. There is no more guesstimating because I enjoy the character of the Holy Spirit in me, which has ushered Jesus Christ in me more than loving my creature self.

Thank God for His mercy and grace, which has brought me to Himself by grafting me into drawing from His vine. He called, and I answered. I shall continue to watch as He carries me through in His strength, after all, is this not what makes Him the most high and powerful God?

Are we living a best guess as to what life is all about? According to everyone else around us, we seem to have things right. There are times when I feel uneasy inside and wonder where I am.

What does God say in the stillness of His voice, which is often overlooked by the noise of this world? The scripture says, "We are to do everything as unto the Lord." Although, what does this mean?

So many people around us are distant from God with a darkened melancholy chorus, making it hard to sing with The Almighty as our choice. This is where we guess how to live instead of what God has planned out as best for our lives.

Hearing God can be confusing at first till instability comes to an end from guesstimating life.

Acceptance of loving the truth, replacing the confusion of distraction within oneself, helps all to grow. This book contains over 50 years of experience on how to hear the Almighty God clearly beyond a deceiver's voice.
