Reality Strands

By

Spirit v Spirits

The Holy Spirit tries to sew strands of thread to make a fabric to compose reality, whereas minion spirits try to prevent thoughts from coming together through disruption. By ripping into the pattern of pure light that God had established within reality's fabric, minions try to distort or twist how He loves us and how to love others until His whole reality can no longer be perceived. The purpose is to blot out the truth of the strands of light that "We love because God first loved us." In this way, only hate would exist without God's presence of pure love. When clarity is absent within a mind, strands of truth go missing, and a dark cavern for evil spirits to hide inside brings indecision.

Threads of darkness try to get you to focus on what's going on in the world physically so that you won't conceptualize being seated in heavenly places with Christ Jesus spiritually. If you knew that you "Walk in the light as He is in the light that darkness no longer overtakes you," you would have a picture in your mind that would threaten what lingers in the unknown areas that try to blot out God's true light. For within the Mind of Christ's brilliance of light, there are spontaneous answers without a pause, and the evil that lurks in darkness cannot withstand this light.

Lags between thoughts have to do with the fallen state that mankind is in while living in the darkness of the breadth that passes through the heights, the depths, and the length of time. Without understanding eternal life, God is not sewn but remains unwed to us while passing Him by without conceptualizing our faith from lacking a real relationship with Him.

Memories of what God blesses us with as children spark forth love strands with an imprint on our minds to have a more complete picture and are a gift of how to love others. Remembering that “To the pure all things are pure and to the impure all things are impure” allows us to be children in a child-like state until we develop to put off childishness as grown-ups. Or they shall become idolatrous stumbling blocks that distract us from a full relationship with God later in life. When our love is enhanced to understand Him as our bridegroom better, we are eager to meet Him without anything in our way as His bride.

A breathing space with clarity comes through the light and life of our bridegroom, Jesus Christ, as the Holy Spirit gradually entreats us to enter God’s kingdom of eternal life. Now we are finally in this world and no longer of it.

“I am the vine, and you are the branches, unless you abide in me, you can do nothing.” By abiding in and building a reality of faith, line upon line and precept upon precept, we weave a reality of trust through the fervency of God’s love with our mindful prayer conversations with Him a little at a time.

Reality strands become tight-knit together as our focus becomes greater than the spiritual darkness of this world. All of its physical accouterments that call us to try and block our peace from the light of life by obsessing on our surroundings in excess must be pressed through. God is our provider, and we must trust that the picture He will conceptualize in our minds is not a fabrication. Yet this is part of a grace that He will implement as we gain access to His kingdom according to His divine timing, which will always be on time.

We must learn to be comfortable within ourselves in every moment with God while remaining before Him. The cross is all-consuming as this is where all of the strands of the threads of His reality of love come together to protect us in the garment of our relationship with Him. Common spiritual thoughts have bonds with what we are sewn to in marriage, which can be seen in the reflection of a mirror that never lies. For as the reflection of God's word never lies, we can see what's entered our souls within the eyes or the lack thereof after a read. "God's word does not return void," so the Spirit of truth can always be discerned within the mirror of what beholds an open eye.

Holy Spirit threads reflect the image of God in light and replace the darkened threads that initially severed Adam's relationship with the Creator one strand at a time until the sun turned black as night, for man had become lost in His sight to where he could not see with Holy Spirit light. Brilliance in reality's darkened threads is what is unseen until it is no longer hidden. Unclean spirits live in shadows till they're broken and replaced by light. There is no more hiding place for sin, as the Holy Spirit of God has brought us back into the fold to be filled where God was missing from within.

What Makes a Picture in Our Minds Clear?

Reality consisted of only threads of light for a maximum perception of emotion and thought in balance. Being in harmony with God until the fall of man through Adam brought disruption. Everything slid out of balance here, where love and truth separated within our minds, making everything dark and confused. “What fellowship does darkness have with light?” and “Woe to those who call darkness light, for how great is that darkness.”

When the mind is dark, there is little or no vision for conceptualization to bring things to order, for “A people perish from a lack of vision,” while focus lacks threads of truth to offer a discerning light. All drift without an anchor on spiritual winds, and blindness sets in, leaving confusion from the absence of any sparks of light. One cannot see how to make a good choice when all is dark.

There are limitations during the confusion in the dark, which can only be overcome by introducing reality from The Christ, the light and life of all men. He is the one who brings a picture to mind that ignites all to life on an eternal scale in a darkened world. The truth of God brings vision to mind to enhance all clarity within our sight, as when having peace for perspective, we have a fair view that beholds every eye. Otherwise, we are ground down by a circle of thoughts, like clustering bees, that sting us in darkness rather than have us see the kingdom of God.

“Be anxious for nothing, but for all things with thanksgiving in your hearts let your prayers and supplications be made known, and the peace of God that surpasses all understanding will guard your hearts and minds.” Being in the waves that shake us apart while in the distortion of time, our minds remain unclear until we land in God's kingdom on His firm foundation, stabilizing our vision within His kingdom of light. "Everything that can be shaken will be shaken so that which will remain will remain." The picture of the light of Christ is here to replace the darkness of the dominions of this world. It is and is already coming to pass. Full focus gives us a picture of the way things are and not what they seem to be within all of this world's distortions as beyond it, "The mind is kept in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on thee." Given the light of Christ, we now have a clear picture within our minds.

Conception of Ideas

How is a picture conceived in our minds to be conceptualized spiritually? It says in Psalm 139, "Before I was conceived in my mother's womb, You knew me." To me, this means that God knew us within light before entering this fallen world's darkness.

When coming out of the dark motion of time in the realm of this fallen world in the dominion of the breadth within the wave of its seconds of existence, we come out of motion and land in the moment. This is where we perceive God's light in the dark world and conceptualize hearing His voice of truth while within the deceiver's darkened cloak.

God has created all ideas to be brought to pass through every person He originally created in the light to have fellowship with Him in sharing His concepts. Unfortunately, we lost the opportunity to share and exchange ideas with our Lord in pure light. Adam's sin brought all into a darkness that turned the sun black within the dark, as day and night are alike to Him, who sees all.

In the prison of darkness that we are in due to sin, our flesh is dying. Now, if not born again, we remain encased within the dark, where we are at the disposal of principalities and powers of spiritual wickedness in the high places. For I see that everyone has been separated from God when conceived in the womb, as made evident at conception by a departure of light due to Adam's original sin until baptism.

Through baptism, transformation allows us to come alive in the Spirit of God's kingdom. Although while continuing in our flesh, dying physically, we can still have our spiritual energy drained by remaining in this world and of this world from the root of choices in which we draw within every thought in life. Though in this world and not of this world, our ideas once again become conceptualized in the light by connecting with God to exchange thoughts with Him. All then can be allowed to experience the kingdom of eternal life on earth as it is in heaven with an even exchange of ideas from God to man and man to God by walking in the light of eternal life for a full existence.

Existence

Is our reality heart and soul, flesh and blood, or do we just exist as furniture to be pushed around by the spiritual forces of this world? This thought that I ponder, is it worth anything? Not unless someone enters this moment and embraces my reality like you just did.

The Spirit of the living God has taught me to experience the centrality of His love that powerfully flows from the fountain of His regenerative blood between the bond of Father and Son. Love, becoming light, goes out into the cycling circle of all creation. Beyond all darkness, abuse is contained as it hides the fact that the Sun is really spiritually black. There's a deceptive blindness of rays hidden, preventing the conception of this dark light.

Leaving the darkness and entering the circle of light, we enter through the door of Jesus Christ. We encounter the resurrection upon return to God's kingdom of eternal life within the balance of love and truth, which gives all sight.

We now know God and walk in the light as if we exist in oneness with Him; we're bonded to the mystical body of Christ. "For behold, although we now see through a mirror darkly, one day we shall know Him as He is for we shall see Him face to face." By the Holy Spirit, we exist spiritually with God as He leads us in our steps to come alive. It is His plan for us to walk with Him in His Kingdom of light every day on earth as it is in heaven that we may know Him as He is. For one day, we will meet Him face to face.

I have been liberated to exist with Him, and anyone else who chooses to join Him, "For now is the kingdom of heaven at hand, and now is the prince of this world cast out." If you trust to believe and receive, you too will answer the call of God's love because I truly believe that we all are in existence as an expression of it.

God Builds

Stretching forth alive, God builds more life as He grows in the expansion of a resurrection, and all who join Him shall share in His glory of eternal life. From out of the circle of death, we fly in the Spirit through the door of the Christ and into the return cycle of a living bloodline of life. Thus, the journey of the resurrection begins like a salmon swimming upstream. We return in like manner to the great high hall alive in the Spirit but dead to corrupted flesh after leaving our mark of light for the next generation to build upon.

Once standing in the cycling circle of the resurrection, by abiding in the vine of God, He builds our relationship with Him when stilled within the breadth. Burning through friction, heat, and flame, we grow through each fiery trial until we are found blameless in His light within each growth stage while coming to know Him. He enlarges our Spirit to be with Him at the moment by the growth of a greater focus to see with sight. "Therefore, if the Son sets you free, you will truly be free."

The dark circle of death tries to prevent us from seeing our steps, the fact that they are in motion and we need to be still, or we just won't grow, at least not in the vine of the light and life of all men.

God's words are eternal, and as we read them in the Bible, we are translated very slowly, "Line upon line and precept upon precept, here a little, there a little." Yes, we grow to know eternal life and progressively meet Him in His kingdom's loving embrace.

The circling spirits that try to block us from God's sensitive and loving regenerative core also keep us from advancing to protect us and Him. For if we were to approach Him with Satan's abuse in the places where His presence is missing from within, we would both get hurt. This is why it is necessary to "Seek peace and pursue it," for without being planted to rest in God's timing, our roots of love become torn out. Then, starting our tumble of motion outside of His restful moment, we would realize our need to be hammered out again by His hand on a higher and higher level until all focus becomes clear. I can see it off in the distance. There is only His love beyond pure light. I have to grow and not go towards Him within His timing, or I'd incur more darkness again till, by grace, my direction was revealed through His light.

When we take matters into our own hands, the chaos of pride awaits and keeps us from knowing God intimately. It is a part of the refashioning process, even when we arrive at His core. By God's Spirit, we experience the love bond between Father and Son in regenerative living blood while He stills and teaches us His principles to enlarge our souls.

So, we must speak to God with His Spirit behind our words after hearing them from every thought in our ears. The tongue is a sword to cut away all darkness and expose any minions to ask God to have them humbly removed. "God's strength is perfected in our weaknesses." "Be still and know that I am God." All our actions and words yield power for creation to either build us up or tear us down in life. By slowing down from motion into stillness, we receive all of His balanced light by love.

The more minions get burned away by God's light, the closer we get to knowing God's fervent love, as it says in the Psalms, "The deep calls unto the deep." Yes, the more we seek God and get closer to Him, the greater we are granted entry through His Son by being built to heal inwardly in our relations with Him when our motives are true. "The kingdom of heaven is from within." Our emotions and thoughts progressively come together and meet at our lips while speaking our words out before Him with pure motives, “Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God.”

Jesus Restores, but the Devil Destroys

“These people honor me with their mouths, but their hearts are far from me.” Jesus, our bridegroom, bids us to come to Him with all the affections of His heart. We see Him and start out towards Him to meet the embrace of His love. However, the devil attempts to show us all what lurks in the dark that seems brighter for a season than walking with God. Our long-suffering Lord awaits beyond any deceiving thoughts. For when believing that somehow what we have in this dark angel’s kingdom is to be preferred in the place of the comfort of God, we need to be set free from the deceptive thoughts of all its familiarity.

Distracted from the fact that God has something better for us than receiving the gift of eternal life, we veer back into choosing darkness over light. Yes, by not trusting that God loves us more in His light over darkness and has something better than what we already have, we profess not to go to Him after receiving the first touch of His love, for we continue to proclaim knowing Him in word when in fact by our actions we do not. When being presumptuous as His bride in a fickle state, we pass Him by in our pride.

It takes a destroyer to tear down what God is building, and the end result is eternal death and not eternal life. “Satan is a roving lion, going to and fro in the earth, seeking whom he may devour.”

I found myself in a situation where I became spiritually attacked by a friend who came to me for spiritual help. It seems his life’s work was an obstacle for him as, on some level, it appeared to me that it was more important than his relationship with God. I prayed with him while standing my ground in the Holy Spirit, which locked my mind immovable while in the presence of His light.

He started to circle around me and then locked arms, taking me by surprise. He started to turn with me till I stopped my motion and focused even more intently on the light and love of my Lord. I noticed the continuation of him cycling around me in a circle till the Spirit of God revealed that the spinning sight he was in was a spirit looking for a place to find fault and accuse me to gain entrance into my soul. So I took him by his hands and started to sing praises to the Lord as I knew that God inhabits the praises of his people. He started to groan and grunt as he went through, going against the spirits driving him.

This was from experiencing the discomfort of the wind that was coming out from the cycle of death that he was in. First, he experienced friction from going against these minions, which drove the spiritual winds and kept him in motion without peace. Then, as he further came out of this pattern, I could tell that the friction turned to heat and a fiery trial as he progressed, and I continued to sing praise in the Spirit of the Lord. He began to froth at the mouth and spit till he next entered into the presence of the bond of my Lord as I continued in the stillness of His light while in eternal life.

He cried, "I can see these hideous creatures invading my mind." I then instructed, "Do not be afraid of them but let them strengthen your faith and instructed him to pray with me as I told him to say, 'You're not the God I serve, the Lord rebuke you, Satan, and get thee behind me. I renounce you and your kingdom of darkness.'" Afterward, he confessed his sins so that what hid in darkness would have no more space to remain within. "If we confess our sin, Christ is just and able to forgive us our sins and cleanse us from all unrighteousness." It is always essential to uncover the root cause on even deeper levels of where we took control of our lives in pride and allowed a minion (a demon from the abyss) to enter. They can start growing within our minds, which are bombarded daily for a foothold to become a stronghold inside all souls.

He continued to run his thoughts of concern about his situation in his mind, which ground Him down to invite more darkness rather than the Lord's trust of light by faith. I next instructed him to flee this manifestation of evil by being still as a lost sheep till the Lord would bring him back into His fold where all of heaven would rejoice. After sharing this, I said, "Be still now and receive the Lord Jesus Christ's loving embrace." I then continued to praise my Lord until I discerned that the atmosphere in the room had turned to peace, and when I looked at my friend, he was smiling with a joyful grin.

After the battle, I instructed him to look in the mirror, which never lies for a lasting impression he would not soon forget. We next continued to praise God in a heavenly place, and this was written all over his face. Yes, "The Lord is our ever-present help in time of need," and "When the enemy comes in like a flood, God raises a standard."

"It will be important for you to stay in the word of God every day from now on," I said. Reading the bible is a perpetual exorcism, you see. For it is written in scripture that unless you first bind up the strongman, you cannot go into his house and steal his goods. We are this fallen angel's goods as Satan is the strongman that holds us prisoner within his kingdom of darkness until Jesus Christ redeems us back into His kingdom of eternal life. Yet once the attic, which is our minds, is cleaned, swept, and put in order, it will attack again unless there is something there to replace darkness and what lives within it. So be sure that once the demon has been driven out, it does not return as it shall invite other spirits to come back, and the latter state of that man will be several times worse than the first.

This is why it's important to consistently keep God's light in mind, as it prevents darkness from returning and becoming a host for these minions again. Always remember that we are being translated from out of Satan's kingdom of darkness and into the kingdom of Christ's light, which the devil continually tries to prevent us from entering any way that this fallen angel can.

I want you to understand that this incident, which God prepared me for after being trained to remain in His presence, is something I grew into over the course of nearly fifty years. This is something that God led me into and not something that I sought out on my own.

God prepares us before He leads and guides His servants into battle in His appropriate timing. If we try to set out and do things in our timing, Satan will trip us up by trying to get us to take on something we're not ready for. This is why we have to grow in the grace and knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ by not trying to obtain a relationship with Him in an off-balanced manner for ourselves.

When it's our timing and not God's, there are consequences for our actions. Doing things in the way of "Our Strength," an abusive pride and temptation to power enter in. This is extremely spiritually dangerous, as not having the deeper humility of a love that would cause us to have a greater bond with God's embrace could again veer off on a tangent of sin until guided back to Him. "Greater is He that is in me than he that is in the world." Keep Christ in your focus at all times because if it does not look like Jesus in both Spirit and in truth from the true substance of the essence of His being, you are choosing what lives in darkness in place of the reality strands of eternal life.

Now, I do not know where God will lead me next, but I do know that if he truly guides me, the joy of the Lord will continue to be my strength. I have passed through the door of Jesus Christ from the realm of darkness into eternal light and life.

Looking back, I can truly say that as long as I keep my hand in His to draw from His vine, which feeds me, stability will remain as His love restrains while remaining to grow at a pace of peace on His firm foundation.

“In the last days, there shall be a dividing between the goats and the sheep” as The Lord says, “In the last days, I shall pour out my Spirit upon all flesh where there will be those who wax hotter and those who will wax colder and fall away.”

We are what we eat spiritually. What we take into our souls, anything that leads away from the fullness of God's presence can affect us physically. What lurks in the darkness destroys as the presence of God's love and light is absent. The closer we walk with our Lord in the Spirit of our divine soul, the less room there is for what can affect our heart, mind, and physical body. If it does not look like Jesus, it isn't.

I put this question to you plainly: Are our glorified bodies a byproduct of being in the fullness of God's presence on earth as it is in heaven? “Enoch then walked with God and was no more for he was with God.” In the Old Testament, The Lord was so pleased with him that he took him. Could this have happened because he walked so closely with God that he entered directly into the full presence of His loving light to experience life eternal, exiting all darkness to step into His kingdom? Thus saith the Lord, “If you search for me with all of your heart, you will find me.”

I love my Lord and love to spend time with and talk about Him as I walk in the light of His loving presence before others. All is well with me, whether I live or die first, and then everything else becomes secondary.

I want to have genuine feelings toward others without being a pretentious pretender. It is not always easy to enter another's suffering unless focused on being a servant of God at all times. Jesus said, "If you so much as give a glass of water in my name, you have not lost your reward." I believe that compassion and empathy will soon follow if we esteem others higher than ourselves and treat them like His Son, Jesus, who died for humanity. "We love because God first loved us."

The Refashioning

Before we were born again, everything revolved around our pride, which allowed us to believe we were in control. Once we enter the spiritual world through the bloodline of Christ, it becomes evident that the love of God that surpasses all understanding guards our hearts and minds. By learning that God holds everything in order, we can choose to trust Him or not.

Consider it not strange when men start to speak ill of you by following the path of light out of darkness. As we slow down out of the darkness of self-centeredness, the love of God becomes a fervent light that we orbit around in humility in place of any selfishness, and here, there is real and eternal life.

Integrity and self-esteem come from the light and life of all men as we've learned to love and not hate ourselves by way of the creator who loves us better than we could ever love that we may love our fellow man. God rejoices in this as He is Father to us all.

We are being refashioned until there is only Christ as, "For now we look through a mirror darkly, but one day we shall see Him face to face as we shall know Him as He is." We are going from having a double mind of darkness that was divided by the fallen man of Adam to transformation into having a single mind of the light of Christ. "We are to take every thought captive unto the subjection of Jesus Christ."

The more fervently our love comes from God, the greater our focus shall be within His kingdom of light. "Our righteousness is as filthy rags," so remember that The Christ working Himself within us by the power of the Holy Spirit allows us separation from this world. Yet it is His work that perfects us in Him when facing all. His strength leads and guides us into becoming Holy upon request. He is Holy, and so must we be. This is the act of God's path of mercy and grace.
